MacArthur Plans Cuts in Army's Pacific Forces In Near Future

Will Send 1,250,000 Men Home in Next Six Months; Five Changes Ordered in Japan

TOKYO, Oct. 11 (AP)—General MacArthur gave high-pointed news today that 1,250,000 of them would be sent home within six months and on the occupation force in Japan, including women's suffrage.

Headquarters plans to send troops home would leave only 400,000 troops in Japan, Korea and other Pacific stations by the end of March, after reducing his estimates of the number of soldiers needed to patrol the beaten empire.

Sweeping Changes Made Five sweeping changes in Japan's social and political setup were outlined in MacArthur's new directive, which was discussed in a one-hour conference between the new Japanese premier, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, and the Allied supreme commander at the latter's headquarters.

The reforms called for enfranchisement of women, encouragement of labor unionization, advance in liberal education so that "the government becomes the servant rather than the master of the people," abolition of "secret inquisition" systems, and the revision of monopolistic industrial control.

Aimed at correcting the "traditional social order of Japan," the reforms will require "liberalization of the constitution of Japan," Allied headquarters said.

The Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi today editorially attacked Shintoism—the religion of emperor and ancestor worship—and urged Japanese religious leaders to use the "complete freedom of religion" which the Allies have given the nation for the first time in its history.

In another move to gain firm control of Japan's finances, Allied headquarters announced the imperial government has been ordered to report all foreign exchange holdings within the next ninety days. The directive was aimed at uncovering imperial household as well as private assets outside the nation.

Will Send Troops Home MacArthur's plans for the homecoming of American troops, at the rate of about 250,000 a month, showed reduction in his previous estimate that 200,000 soldiers would be sufficient to occupy Japan.

The new figure called for 200,000 in both Japan and Korea. The divisions scheduled to remain in Japan, sifted of highpoint men, were the Eleventh Airborne, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth and First Cavalry. The Seventh and Sixth divisions will be stationed in Korea.

The Eighty-sixth division was slated for the Philippines, with 36,000 more men to occupy Okinawa and other Ryukyu islands south of the Japanese home islands.

Other units making up the total of 400,000 in the Pacific theater forces will be maintained in the Marianas, Hawaii and other island bases.

Martin To Press For Death Penalty SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11 (AP)—Wilbur L. Martin, navy warrant officer, implied today that he would press for the death penalty for the socially prominent Mrs. Annie Irene Mansfield, 45, charged with the slaying of Martin's wife, Vada, 36-year-old nurse.

Mrs. Mansfield was charged with shooting Mrs. Martin to death after accusing the nurse of engaging in intimacies with Dr. John H. Mansfield, 58. Apprised of the tragedy, Dr. Mansfield killed himself with poison.

Martin returned yesterday from twenty-two months' service in the Pacific. Today he was closeted with District Attorney Edmund Brown.

A reporter asked him if he thought the prosecutor should demand the death penalty. "What would be your situation if someone killed your wife?" the navy man replied. The reporter considered, and said "I would ask for the death penalty," Martin nodded. "That's the way I feel about it," he said.

J. Gen. Morgan Will Succeed Alexander LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The British overnight tonight announced appointment of Lieut. Gen. W. D. Morgan as supreme commander of the occupation forces in Germany, the latter becomes United States chief of staff in Washington.

Civilian Demands For Meat Restore Federal Program

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—A stronger civilian demand for meat than food officials had expected led the government today to re-establish rationing programs to obtain supplies promised foreign countries.

Buying in open competition with civilians, the government has been unable to obtain between 500,000 and 600,000,000 pounds sought for commercial export, principally to Great Britain, France, Holland and Belgium.

Thus it took steps to require slaughterers to divert a sufficient amount from civilian distribution channels to fill export commitments.

In announcing this action, the Agriculture department said there still should be sufficient meat to give civilians as much as has been promised them for the final quarter of this year.

When lower grades of meats were reduced to zero point values at the beginning of the October rationing period, the department said the civilian supply for the quarter should be at the annual per capita rate of 148 pounds compared with less than 115 pounds during the summer.

Under the liberalized rationing program, civilians apparently had been buying at more than the 148-pound rate.

Today's action appears to indicate that early termination of all meat rationing is not likely.

The requisitioning program affects federally-inspected supplies of lower grades of beef, veal and mutton. The entire output of all non-federally inspected slaughterers, which includes thousands of small local meat producers, will continue to be available for civilians.

British Airways Will Start Baltimore-Bermuda Service Oct. 18 WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—British overseas airways announced tonight it would begin twice weekly Baltimore-Bermuda service Oct. 18.

The five-hour flight will be made with forty-two ton, fifty passenger Transatlantic Boeing airliners. The planes will leave Baltimore airport on Thursday and Saturdays, at 11 a. m. returning Fridays and Sundays.

The BOA said the fare will be $80 one way, $144 round trip, plus federal tax. No passports are required.

China's Powerful Leaders Agree That They Must Co-operate BY JAMES D. WHITE Associated Press Staff Writer SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11 (AP)—China's two most powerful leaders have met and talked for five weeks, and parted with a statement which says in effect:

"We simply must get along together." The unknown quantity of the personal contact and confidence established between Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Communist Leader Mao Tse-Tung will play an important part in how well they work together in the future.

The two men have agreed on a few of the problems which have to be ironed out in order to unite Communist and Kuomintang China.

After shaking hands the two have parted, with expressions of optimism but with key questions left unsolved.

It may be that the solution of these problems, which have prevented Chinese unity for two decades, could not have been found by two men in five weeks.

Mao Tse-Tung now has flown back to the Red capital at Yenan where he will have to convince his supporters that what the Reds have built in eighteen years of political and physical exile will not be lost in the settlement which he thinks he can wangle with Chungking.

Coal Strikes May Bring Government Rationing of Gas

Five Days of Fruitless Discussion Fails To Bring any Agreement

By HAROLD W. WARD WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The government prepared for possible rationing of manufactured gas should the coal strikes continue to spread and conciliation talks remained deadlocked.

Secretary of Labor Schwelienbach recessed until 11 a. m. tomorrow the government-sponsored conferences between John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers and the bituminous coal operators, after five days of fruitless discussion.

The number of struck mines rose from 831 to 879 during the day, involving 187,037 men. The day's production loss was 1,044,408 tons and the total tonnage lost since the strikes began September 21 soared to 8,641,717.

At issue in the strikes is a demand for recognition by the operators of Lewis's foremen's union. A report on the lack of progress in the peace talks was given to President Truman today by Secretary Schwelienbach.

The President sent no immediate message to the conferees, Schwelienbach said.

The developments prompted John D. Small, chairman of the New Civilian Production Administration set up to take the place of the War Production Board, to recall a staff of experts to prepare for the rationing of manufactured gas should the coal strike make that necessary.

Householders would not be affected by the ration plans, Small said.

The officials of the gas division of the War Production Board, headed by Alexander Macomber of Boston, were recalled although several already have resigned.

The step was in readiness for any emergency, and no definite decision had been made on the rationing proposal.

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, at a news conference, said that despite the strikes the government still expects to ship its full quota of 8,000,000 tons of coal to Europe this winter.

While the daily loss in production this week has passed the million ton mark, Ickes expressed the opinion that government rationing of coal would not be necessary.

He said that coal dealers themselves knew best what each customer required and could impose their own rationing system.

It was understood that Schwelienbach had submitted several "concrete proposals" to the operators and miners in the past two days, and that the operators held conflicting views on acceptance.

Neither side would comment, however, and Schwelienbach gave no outward sign of pessimism.

Negro, Accused of Rape Is Taken from Jail And Shot to Death MADISON, Fla., Oct. 11 (AP)—Sheriff Lonnie Davis said today that Jesse James Payne, negro under indictment for assault with intent to rape a five-year-old white girl, was taken from an unguarded Madison county jail here last night and shot to death.

At Tallahassee, Governor Millard Caldwell said he had just received a "sketchy report" on the affair and would start an immediate investigation.

Payne had been held for safekeeping at the state prison in Tallahassee since his arrest July 4 at Monticello, where state highway patrolmen had guarded him from a crowd that gathered after he had been shot during a posse chase.

Americans Used Worn-out Forts, Crammed with TNT, against Nazis

(The army air forces today permitted disclosure of one of America's great secrets of the war—the "death bomber.") The following exclusive description of its development was written by Franklin Barker, former Associated Press war correspondent, who observed it at close range in England. Sworn to secrecy, he was not permitted to write his story for more than a year. Barker now is a member of the AP Pittsburgh staff.

By FRANKLIN BARKER PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11 (AP)—Disclosure of one of the most dramatic chapters of World War II—how dozens of daring American airmen, flitting constantly with death, worked in the greatest secrecy to develop a "death bomber" as an answer to the Germans' rockets and buzz-bombs—was authorized by the army air forces today.

The "death bomber," forerunner of the atomic bomb in that it was designed to destroy all enemy personnel and war installations over a wide area at a single blow, was born at a United States bomber base in England.

Worn-out Forts Used Principally it comprised a worn-out Flying Fortress jammed to capacity with tons of explosive many times more powerful than TNT.

Good for no other purpose because the heavy duty of its tour of bombing missions made it unsafe for further formation flying, this pilotless B-17—once $250,000 worth of airplane—would be sent crashing down on its target by means of radio apparatus in a small control plane flying nearby.

Because of the great hazard involved, only volunteers and veteran flyers were assigned to develop the "death bomber" which "died" as it killed.

A crash on take-off might have killed everyone at the base. Once safely in the air, the two-man crew of a pilot and co-pilot bailed out and the bomber was guided over the English channel by radio control.

Used Sparingly Because the air force was loath to use any weapon unless its aiming accuracy was ensured, the "death bombers" were never employed in any great number. A few were dropped on the giant concrete buzz-bomb launching runways the Germans built along the Pas de Calais coast of France. After that the war rolled so swiftly on to Germany that standard-type bombing filled the bill.

The Kamikaze technique later evolved by the Japanese resembled next year and the drafting of revenue-raising proposals which Mayor McKeldin said might include a cigarette tax.

O'Connor told Mayor McKeldin by telegram today that the city must have a definite budget and a revenue program ready before he will consider calling the legislature into session.

In reply to a suggestion by McKeldin that the city be given the Baltimore proceeds from one per cent of the state income tax, the Governor replied that city revenues be used, since present state revenues "justify a reduction in income taxes."

Under McKeldin's plan, the income levy would have been increased from its present one and one-third per cent to the authorized two per cent.

The proposal for a special session followed presentation of 1946 budget requests totaling $70,410,000.80 by Baltimore department heads, an increase of almost $11,500,000 over this year's appropriation.

Both Baltimore and Cumberland officials say they need additional revenue, which could be obtained through enabling legislation authorizing laying of special levies. Post commented that "there is no use for us to consider reducing wages for their prewar level at this time."

Meanwhile, Baltimore city officials set to work on ascertaining the minimum amount with which Maryland's metropolis can get through

Tax-Cutting Bill Passed by House By 343 to 10 Vote

Slashes in Federal Spending Demanded by Reps. Doughton and Martin

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Amid shouted demands for slashes in federal spending, the House passed today the first tax-cutting bill to enter Congress in sixteen years—easing individual and business burdens by $5,350,000,000 in 1946.

The vote was 343 for, 10 against. The ten members voting against the bill were H. Carl Andersen (R-Minn.), Bailey (D-W.Va.), Cannon (D-Mo.), Granger (D-Utah), Hook (D-Mich.), Hull (Prog-Wis.), LaFollette (R-Ind.), Link (D-Ill.), Mansfield (D-Mont.), and Marcantonio (AL-N.Y.).

For 1947 the legislation provides a $7,252,000,000 reduction below present levies.

Now tossed to the Senate, the bill takes 12,000,000 low income persons off the income tax rolls completely and gives at least a ten per cent reduction to all other persons subject to this levy.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee and the House Republican leader, Martin of Massachusetts, joined during the debate in demanding curtailment of government spending, as well as means to assure further lightening of the tax load.

Doughton said the budget must be balanced and payments made on the national debt. He declared:

"To make taxes bearable it is important that all non-essential federal spending be eliminated."

Martin took the floor to say:

"I serve notice that although the Republican members of this House will give their support to this measure, we shall continue to fight with unflinching determination to reduce the costs of this government and, by so doing, eventually reduce the burden of taxes."

Other Republicans demanded larger tax reductions at this time. Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, senior Ways and Means Republican, expressed hope the Senate will repeal outright the excess profits tax which is only partially eliminated in the House bill.

The House measure, which may be revised in the Senate, provides this relief for taxpayers in 1946:

1. Lifts all income taxes from 12,000,000 persons and gives other individuals (there were 50,000,000 taxpayers when the war ended) cuts ranging from ten percent to more than forty percent. No persons would get less than a ten per cent reduction. Income tax savings to individuals would amount to $2,527,000,000. Pay-as-you-go withholdings from wages and salaries would be reduced January 1.

2. Eases corporation burdens by $1,888,000,000, including partial repeal of the war time excess profits levy and lowering of the business surtax rate.

3. Reduces sharply, next July 1, the record wartime excises on so-called luxuries, including liquor, luggage, furs, jewelry and cosmetics. This would save consumers $535,000,000 in the last six months of 1946. The liquor tax would be cut from $9 to $6 a gallon. About $160,000,000 in floor stocks taxes would be refunded.

4. Abolishes the $5 automobile use tax next July 1.

5. Freezes the social security tax in 1946 at one per cent each on employee's pay and employer's payroll. Without the freeze the tax would jump to 2.5 per cent against each on January 1.

Secret Radio Announces Jewish Resistance Move in Palestine JERUSALEM, Oct. 11 (AP)—Armed Jews seized munitions in a raid on the Palestine military training depot today, military headquarters said, while a clandestine radio declared an active resistance movement had been formed to assist immigration of Jews into the Holy Land.

Viscount Lord Gort, British high commissioner of Palestine, conferred with Jewish leaders after the raid in which 218 rifles and fifteen machine guns were stolen.

At the same time it was reported that American soldiers on leave in Palestine from Egypt and elsewhere had been recalled to their bases.

Argentine Army Demands Change In Farrell Regime

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 11 (AP)—Argentina's military government, bowing to popular will buttressed by army and navy pressure, tonight decreed that presidential elections would be held April 7, 1946—nearly three years after the constitutional government was overthrown by a military revolt.

The government's action followed a meeting of 120 army and navy officers who demanded that President Edelmiro Farrell overhaul his cabinet completely and arrest Col. Juan Peron, who resigned yesterday as minister of war at the instance of the army.

Some of those who attended the meeting at the army club said that the group voted "by acclamation" to send a delegation to the president and the new war minister, Gen. Eduardo Azaola, to demand the cabinet changes.

Earlier the army had called for the resignation of Interior Minister Hortensio Quijano, who served as the envoy to force Peron's resignation.

At a late press conference, Treasury Minister A. G. Antille said that cabinet ministers already had resigned but did not give their names. Other sources reported they were Quijano and Navy Minister Admiral Alberto Tessaire, both of whom were considered Peron men.

Meanwhile, Quijano announced that all newspapers closed by police would be permitted to publish again and that all striking university students recently arrested would be released except those facing criminal charges.

Appeal Is Taken In Election Case

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—The court of appeals was asked today to pass final judgment on the mandamus action brought against the Board of Supervisors of Elections of the City of Annapolis, involving the duty of city officials in furnishing certified copies of registered voters.

The decision may have far-reaching effect upon such officials in other sections of the state as the suit was brought under provisions of Section 27 of Article 33 of the Annotated Code.

The petitioner was Joseph M. Armstrong, individually and as chairman of the Republican City committee, and the suit was directed against Mrs. Edith Rawlings and others constituting the board of supervisors.

At Haifa twenty young Jews, including two girls, were convicted of illegal possession of arms and explosives. Sentence was deferred.

(British Colonial Secretary George Hall told Commons that the high commissioner of Palestine was taking "all possible measures" to prevent repetition of the raid on the Athlith camp.)

The Athlith camp inmates attacked the guards in effecting the break, and that a Christian woman bound by the escapees had died of suffocation.

One British constable was killed and two other policemen were wounded when a police car hunting for the escapees was ambushed.

69 Persons Are Killed in Japan; 100 Americans Hurt on Okinawa

8,000 Homes Are Flooded in Central and Southern Honshu; Four Jap Prisoners Killed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Navy announced today that eighty-nine officers and men are dead or missing after a typhoon in the Okinawa area Sept. 16-18, which sank four motor mine sweepers and a submarine chaser.

There was no loss of life aboard the subchaser.

Among the missing are Lt. Willard Edwin Blaser, skipper of the YMS-472; Lt. Walter Scott Townsend, commander of the YMS-98 and Lt. (J.G.) John William Colglazier, skipper of the YMS-341.

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 11 (AP)—Three navy men were killed and ten are missing in the Okinawa typhoon, first, incomplete reports to fleet headquarters here stated today.

Fifty-two ships and seventy additional miscellaneous craft were beached and two tugs, a patrol yacht, a gasoline barge and a minesweeper were sunk in Buckner bay. Naval installations were damaged extensively.

The navy's reports are meager because they came from the East coast of Okinawa, which had no communications with the western side of the ten-mile wide island.

Mess halls were demolished or damaged, camps were damaged extensively.

80 Bridges Washed Out TOKYO, Friday, Oct. 12 (AP)—Sixty-nine persons were killed and thousands were made homeless in Tuesday's typhoon which swept Central and Southern Honshu, preliminary reports indicated today.

Damaged communications prevented compilation of complete reports.

It was known that 8,000 homes were flooded and eighty bridges washed out.

More than 8,000 acres of land washed away as river banks caved in, releasing waters to flood farm-lands.

The typhoon swept north from Okinawa where four Japanese prisoners of war were killed and 100 Americans were injured. It hit Japan at a time when the nation already was facing a severe food shortage and was attempting to make every acre count. Heavy rains accompanying the typhoon added to the damage.

The typhoon appeared to have swept out to sea. Today a bright sun shone over all of Honshu for the first time in a week.

Americans were bailing out their tents and drying their clothes.

By JOHN GROVER MANILA, Friday, Oct. 11 (AP)—A typhoon, with winds up to 132 miles an hour, injured 100 of nearly 100,000 American service personnel on Okinawa Tuesday and so thoroughly leveled installations that immediate evacuation of some forces is urgent, the army reported today.

The typhoon later hit Central and Southern Honshu, the main island of Japan, killing sixty-nine persons and leaving thousands homeless.

Today's first official army report on the typhoon—it did not cover naval personnel yet to be reported—suggested that Okinawa may become a permanent postwar base.

Brig. Gen. Lawrence Lawson, base commander, recommended removal of all troops not needed for the "permanent garrison."

Amplifying the report, Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz in a delayed dispatch said four Japanese prisoners of war were killed by a building's collapse.

Plea for Air Markers Should Be Heeded

AS the Cumberland Municipal Airport is soon to be in operation with daily flights to Hagerstown and Baltimore by one airline, it will likely be utilized more by other flyers in the immediate future and in the near future the bigger interstate lines will begin using it. Therefore, suggestion that comes from the State Aviation Commission of Maryland that suitable identifying air markers be provided for communities is timely and something should be done about it at once.

A campaign to speed up a state air marker program was started last spring by the Civil Air Patrol. Some state funds have been provided for air marking, but these are to be used in so far as possible to mark sections of the state remote from cities and towns. Accordingly, the aviation commission is requesting all communities of more than 1,000 population to take steps to raise funds or otherwise provide for installing these air marking signs locally.

Thus, the suggestion applies not only to Cumberland but to other communities in the section. The need for more than one marker at more than one place is obvious. Cloud patches may obscure one and the others would help the flyers to get their bearings.

"Flying in Maryland will be much simpler for the average private pilot when he can see a marker every few minutes which will inform him where he is and will give him a check on his bearing," says Edward R. Penimore, director of the state aviation commission.

"The flyer who has no air markers to guide him is in much the same position as the motorist who drives into a strange section and sees no highway signs," he adds. "And the flyer, unlike the motorist, cannot stop and ask some pedestrian for directions."

In the absence of funds for the painting of these markers, it might be well for some of the larger industrial concerns in this and other communities of this section—as well as elsewhere in the state—to come to the front and provide the signs. Some communities may be able to find the money in their contingency funds with which to purchase the few gallons of paint needed for the air markers. In the case of those without such funds, Penimore said that some assistance could be obtained from the state.

The markers should not be provided in haphazard manner. Penimore cautions against indiscriminate or unplanned air marking, pointing out that the Civil Aeronautics Administration has established standard measurements and directions for them, which should be followed. The detailed information can be obtained by applying to the State Aviation Commission of Maryland, Munsey building, Baltimore 2, or by communicating directly with Maj. E. Ridgeley Simpson, of the Civil Air Patrol, 112 South Gay street, Baltimore.

Air markers should be as simple as possible and should be of sufficient size to be legible under good visibility conditions from a height of at least 3,000 feet. Each marker should carry, as well as the name of the community, the latitude and longitude in degrees and minutes.

The letters and numerals of the markers should be at least twenty feet in height, but fifty feet is preferable. The colors should be chrome yellow outlined with black.

Flat roofs are preferred for air markers. Gable roofs can be used where the slope of the sides is not too great, but when used each side should have a complete marker. Hip roofs should be avoided. Ground markers can also be provided, but they should be in open spaces away from trees or other obstructions.

To indicate and specifically identify an airport, there should be, of course, a hangar marker, and this will undoubtedly be supplied at once by the airport authorities, or should be. The hangar marker must be a circle of chrome yellow with a black border of one-half the stroke. Inside the circle the latitude, longitude and minutes thereof are to be shown. Underneath the circle the name of the town must be painted in ten-foot letters and an arrow pointing north must be included.

The need of these markers should be realized by all who may be concerned in providing them, not merely as a means of putting the community on the air map, but for the safety of all those who will be using this modern method of transportation.

Prevention Better Than an Old Saying

MANY PERSONS do not appreciate the work carried on by organizations that obtain their support from public contributions. Such an organization is the Society for the Prevention of Blindness, which has headquarters at 1790 Broadway, New York city.

In its thirtieth annual report, the society cites as its principal activities the conservation of eyesight in industry; control of glaucoma, and promotion of special classes and facilities for the education of children with seriously defective vision.

"If it is possible," the report asks discussing vocational rehabilitation, "in times of war to utilize defective eyesight with the aid of corrective work glasses, proper lighting, and other mechanical improvements, why could not these principles be applied to the postwar program of providing useful work for the returning visually-handicapped servicemen as well as civilians who hitherto had not been able to realize fully their capacity for gainful employment?"

Specialization in the treatment of eye trouble has brought remarkable advancement. Cataracts, for years, have been removed successfully. Twenty-five years ago thousands became blind every year when these "shutters" dropped over the iris. Glaucoma is now being successfully controlled. Recently an "eye-bank" was started in New York city to supply live corneal tissue.

The report shows further that since the founding of the society thirty years ago, the number of children in schools for the blind who lost their sight because of ophthalmia neonatorum has been reduced by seventy-five per cent; the number of sight-saving classes for children with seriously defective vision has grown to 613; and programs in industrial safety have multiplied and improved notably. The original band of ten pioneers who founded the organization has grown into an army of 30,000 members and donors.

Here is a work that multiplies the old saying about the ounce of prevention and the pound of cure; for the value of prevented blindness is immeasurable.

An Arch Traitor Gets His Just Due

DRESSED in a condemned man's suit of burlap sacking and chained to the wall with leg irons, Pierre Laval, arch traitor of France, awaits death before a firing squad.

He will be shot unless Gen. de Gaulle grants the former Vichy chief of government clemency and a new trial, neither of which he seems to deserve.

During his trial, Laval showed himself to be not only a traitor but a coward. He endeavored to shift blame on former Marshal Henri Petain for events that followed the Nazi occupation of France.

There seems to be little doubt as to Laval's collaboration with Hitler. He went all-out in an effort to support Nazi rule in France. Had Hitler won the war, Laval would have been content to be the ruler of France as a puppet state under the Nazi heel.

The trial of this arch traitor was conducted in a manner most astonishing to Americans. It was to them a most unusual proceeding. At times the defendant refused to appear in court. On several occasions when he did, he exchanged oaths and other bitter words with the judge and members of the jury. It is impossible to picture such a scene in an American court without a mistrial. But the French are a peculiar people temperamentally.

Regardless of the conduct of the trial, however, no substantial doubt appears to have been created as to Laval's guilt. He betrayed his country in its greatest hour of need, and a traitor's ignominious death is his just desert.

A Lasting Lesson Of Persistence

TODAY is the four hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the arrival in the New World of Christopher Columbus. Many insist, of course, that Columbus was not the first to visit the new land. But even so, there was no follow-up of earlier explorations. It remained for Columbus to point the way to the New World's opportunities.

In the twentieth century world, man thinks nothing of crossing the ocean. But in Columbus's day it must have been a trying hour for the man who held so firmly to his belief that the earth was a sphere, that he was willing to risk all to set sail for the unknown. School children still thrill to the accounts of the heroic little Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria, and their gallant captain.

Columbus died penniless and without honor. But he had been true to his beliefs, and the seed of discovery and exploration which he planted was destined to grow and develop.

One of the biggest moving jobs in Washington is getting under way the army figuring that some 15,000 officers and their families will be on the move soon either through transfers or discharges. It might be well to back up a few vans for some of the civilian job holders.

Our curbside philosopher says he can't for the life of him remember what they did with all that daylight he saved during the last several years.

The atomic scientists of Chicago are viewing with concern hasty legislation regarding atomic energy. Wonder what they mean by "hasty"?

The epidemic of housebreaking is getting on the nerves of a good many local residents, especially those living in the outlying sections.

KEEP INITIATIVE ALIVE!

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

We owe to the initiative of people most of the things which have contributed to our comfort, success and happiness.

Initiative discovered America. It settled the wild places of the earth, created pioneers, inventors, scientists and investigators, made poor boys rich and famous, and has turned many a defeat into a victory.

Without initiative a man either stands still or else has to lean upon another who has developed initiative.

Initiative is cumulative. The derivation of the word itself means to go into things, to start them. Everything really worthy has a humble beginning—but grows and grows.

The world is full of people who are forever telling you just how to do a certain thing, or how to accomplish some task, but how many are there who will think out the task, or the job, consult mostly their innermost self—and then go ahead and do the job—and get the thing done?

The easiest thing in the world is to criticize and find fault, but it is not always easy to think out something that is worth while, and then to create from one's ideas a definite and useful structure. Men with initiative are usually silent men. They are with ideas and courage, though without the latter there is little to inspire initiative.

I like this definition of initiative: Doing a thing without being told! Of course a great many of our starts end in failures, but it's that eternally ready quality of initiative that keeps telling us that there is a better way—and a winning way.

Keep that God-given initiative of yours—alive. If it is sleeping, arouse it!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Truman's Half Year Is Good but Friends May Prove His Waterloo, Pearson Says

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Unlike the proverbial wise-crack about the first hundred days of matrimony, the first hundred days in the life of any president are the easiest.

Today Harry Truman began the second half of his first year in the White House and already he has begun to feel the pinch of increasing trouble. Here is the report card on how he has done so far.

Politics—Politically, Harry has outdone the "old master." He has steered a medium course between southern reactionaries and big city liberals, kept his fingers on the pulse of the country, striven hard for national unity, and leaned over so far to please Congress that it's almost a sin rather than a virtue. You can't please both sides indefinitely, however, and the time has just about come when Truman has had to choose between the liberals and the conservatives.

Cabinet Is Better—Taken man for man, Truman's cabinet is better than Roosevelt's. Truman believes in delegating responsibility and eliminating too much centralized control. His cabinet, however, has one administrative weakness. Most of its members served time in Congress; therefore, have drifted into the bad habit of spending more time shaking hands with visitors than running their departments. Important administrative problems are muffed because the cabinet chiefs simply don't have time both to talk to people and make decisions.

White House efficiency—Truman so far has operated a more efficient administration than Roosevelt. He likes to decide things quickly. Sometimes this gets him into trouble, as in the case of his statement that all Lend-Lease would be forgiven—a pronouncement later publicly reversed by Secretary of State Byrnes.

Friends—This may be Harry Truman's Waterloo. He loves convivial friends, isn't always too careful how he picks them, is intensely loyal, whoever they are. If you served with Harry in the Missouri National Guard or in Battery D, or helped him in the old Pendergast days or in his campaign for vice president, he doesn't forget it. Roosevelt put principles before friends, Truman puts friends before principles. One old friend, Edward McKim, a Nebraska insurance man, got him into trouble. Another insurance friend, George Allen, the Mississippi legislator, is likely to get him into more.

Young Lawyers Drop Out—Young Rooseveltians—It hasn't been publicized, but a lot of the tough young lawyers and economists who were the backbone behind Roosevelt's cabinet are now quietly dropping out. Attorney General Tom Clark has lost some. Secretary of the Treasury Fred Vinson doesn't know it yet, but he is scheduled to lose some. These are men who could make big salaries on the outside, but have worked for almost nothing because their chiefs were fighting a liberal fight they believed in. Now that fighting spirit is on the ebb and they want to get out, their discouragement is the best barometer of Truman liberalism.

Army-Navy—As head of the Senate investigating committee, Truman has given the army and navy a good light to business groups that conventions are on the okay list again, so any day now we can expect to hear a paper bag full of water whizz past our ears. But I really love conventions. I was on the steering committee for one once. Steering committee—that's the group that shouts, "Forget our sales in the state of Idaho, someone go after the girls!"

And there's always a saboteur at every convention. He's the guy who tries to mention business during the three days they're here.

I want to a convention once and thought I was at a family reunion. Every time I turned around, someone would ask me if I'd seen "old granddad." Of course, conventions do achieve something in a business way. You'll usually find a small group of the more serious members huddled in a little room. And if you can get hot with the dice, you can really clean up.

The most confusing convention I ever attended was a caucus of undertakers. Everyone looked so downhearted you couldn't tell those who'd brought their wives.

And I finally found out why Atlantic city is such a favorite convention city. If the men arrive home soaked to the gills, they can tell their wives they fell in the ocean.

Five-Year Stretch Is Seen Advisable For Training Plan

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Gen. Marshall's report gives the first intimation that the department of State has become convinced that physical might and military force must be the real talking point in the relations between nations.

The "big stick" idea has long been a matter of debate. There are some who feel that to possess a large military machine is a deterrent to peace because of the temptation to use force to back up diplomacy's threats. There are others who feel that wars are inevitable and that it is hopeless to try to solve disputes by any other means.

Gen. Marshall's comments on the way World War II was won are illuminating and his report, on the whole, is an excellent narrative. It is only when he comes to the subject of universal military training that differences of opinion will develop.

The timing of our decision on the question of universal military training is urgent," he says in part.

"The officials of the State department have been strongly of the opinion that a decision in this matter prior to the final peace negotiations would greatly strengthen the hand of the United States in securing acceptance of a genuine organization to handle international differences."

Discouraging Philosophy—This is not a new philosophy but it is a discouraging one. After the most horrible war in human history, apparently the lessons in human relations which brought on the war have been ignored and the assumptions being made are those that take it for granted man will never be able to settle disputes except by what Lloyd George once called "organized savagery."

If the department of State has come to the conclusion that a large military force is necessary to coerce or persuade or influence other nations to accept the terms of a peace settlement, then any system of universal military training would seem to be inadequate and the need would seem to be for a large standing army of professional soldiers.

Along with this concept might well be read another portion of Gen. Marshall's report, which points out that "the only effective defense a nation can now maintain is the power of attack."

Offense as Best Defense—This is but another way of saying that the best defense is an offense. It is also another way of indicating that the age-old argument about security has become realistically pertinent in a world in which nations do not even break off diplomatic relations and then declare war but do both only with the firing of the first shot.

How then shall security be attained? Gen. Marshall feels that a force of 4,000,000 men with training of one year should always be available. But he indicates clearly that he would have boys stop after their high-school graduation and take a year in the army before going to college. This means a serious impairment of the educational cycle and a possible loss to the country of many young men who otherwise would get a college training.

Unfortunately various war department officials, including Secretary

Patterson, are prejudiced against the college man for officer purposes and feel it is not essential to develop officer material out of those who have proved themselves by periodic examinations to be able to earn a college degree.

Educators Criticized—

The insistence of various educators that the military training program be not allowed to interrupt the sequence of education has been criticized by some War department officials—not Gen. Marshall—as extremely selfish or as guided by self-interest. This is countered, however, by the equally untenable criticism that officers of the army are selfishly interested in a military training program so as to retain their rank and give them more opportunities for promotion. A simple solution between 17 and 23.

The military training program is essential and so is a large army, navy and air force, but not as a means of coercing other nations to accept our peace terms. The case can rest better on the needs of defense against unknown enemies in a world where democracy has not yet learned how to cultivate or maintain friendship with other nations and where selfishness and materialism still dominate the diplomacy of democracies as well as non-democracies.

Rubber Outlook Brighter—Rubber: The rubber stocks should hold their present level or do better during the postwar period. Their markets should expand and their operating costs should decrease.

Steel: After the complete reconstruction of the nation's economy, and a reduced tax burden the steel companies should show better profits. Everyone is justified in having a few steel stocks in his portfolio.

Tobacco: Not being a smoker myself, I am in no position to forecast as to the future of the tobacco industry. Most of my friends, however, are bullish on this industry.

One Good Textile Year—Textiles: The textile industry should have at least one exceptionally good postwar year, but after this both demands and profits should flatten out. It is a "feast or famine" industry.

Utilities: The utilities are once again getting fair treatment. Any cut in taxes will help most utilities. Every investor may continue to hold a reasonable proportion of electric utility securities; but all should watch atomic energy developments.

Miscellaneous: I am bullish on the market as a whole. Perhaps the safest method would be to diversify among all these leading industries—instead of picking winners. By all means do not put too much of your money in any one industry unless it is merchandising, which profits from all industries and hence is a form of diversification in itself.

Allegany Nurses Alumnae Will Aid European Nurses

Make Tentative Plans for Memorial for Lt. Nancy Leo

The Allegany Hospital Nurses Association discussed tentative plans for a memorial for Lt. Nancy Leo, and contributions for nurses in Denmark, Russia and other war devastated countries, at the meeting Wednesday evening in the staff room of the hospital, with Miss Alta Earl presiding.

Lt. Leo, daughter of Mrs. Francis P. Leo, 328 Frederick street, was killed in a jeep accident in Paris, France, July 24, 1945. The first of Cumberland's nurses to die in World War II, Lt. Leo was graduated from Allegany Hospital School of Nursing in 1942 and had been overseas for sixteen months.

The request for contributions for the nurses of Europe was made by the International Council of Nurses. Uniforms, hose, bandages, surgical scissors and other equipment will be brought, for packing, at the meeting November 14. At Wednesday's meeting a box was packed for the Sisters of Charity in Europe. A letter from the Historical Society was also read, requesting information of the history of the Allegany nurses contribution in the war effort.

Leo H. Ley, Sr., was the guest speaker at the meeting and discussing "Public Speaking," stressed enunciation, pronunciation, and music in the voice. He explained how the nurses voice effects the patient and pointed out how she must be a good actress and gave practical hints on helping the patient's morale.

not to do with his long life and recent good health.

In 1877 Dr. Hocking moved to the doctor's house in Baltimore to take over the practice of his younger brother, Dr. John W. Hocking, who died that year.

When he moved to Baltimore here was not an automobile in the city and for fourteen years he used horse and carriage to make his calls in Baltimore city and county. He bought his first automobile in 1907 and recalled yesterday that he never turned down a call, day or night, or more than fifty years.

Dr. Hocking estimates that he has delivered several thousand babies and took care of most of them until they reached adult life. He said he is especially glad that he had lived long enough to see medicine make marvelous strides. He added that his "love for the profession has made me keep up with its progress."

Married Cumberland Woman
Last June Dr. Hocking and his life, the former Miss Martha Johns obbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Robbins, Cumberland, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

They have two children, William Hocking and Mrs. F. Grainger Jarburg, both of Baltimore, five grandchildren and one great-grandchild. One cousin, G. Fred Hocking, resides at Frostburg and so do three nephews and a niece, William H. Charles S. George G. and Miss Eva Jeffries. Another niece, Mrs. Arthur F. Smith, resides at Lonaconing and another nephew, S. B. Jeffries, lives at Keyser, W. Va. Dr. Hocking has been a member of the Maryland Medical Society for the last fifty years and is the only member of the Baltimore County Medical Association to serve as its president for two years.

Miss Margery Ivolue Muncaster, daughter of Mrs. Walter J. Muncaster, 532 Washington street, has again scored in the radio world. Miss Muncaster is one of the very few women to obtain a first class commercial radio operator license, as the result of a Federal Communications Commission examination held yesterday at the post office building.

The license certifies Miss Muncaster as a "radio-telephone operator, first class," and is issued only after the applicant successfully passes four elements of the federal examination.

Employed for the past year and one half at the Fort Hill transmitter station of WTBO, Miss Muncaster first became interested in the technical side of radio, when she attended the Western Maryland Amateur Radio Club's eight-month course. She passed her federal examinations with flying colors and became the first licensed Class B radio-telephone and telegraph operator in Western Maryland.

She was active in the Allegheny County War Emergency Radio Service Communication network. Something of a mechanic too, she operates a radio telegraph set she built herself.

Offered a position at WTBO, Miss Muncaster secured a limited permit qualifying her for commercial work during the national emergency. Continuing her studies, she improved her status a year ago by passing the second class commercial examination. Now, fully qualified with the top grade of federal commercial permit, Miss Muncaster plans to continue her association with WTBO.

SUIT OVER SIDEWALK IS ARGUED IN STATE COURT OF APPEALS

An appeal by the mayor and council of Frostburg from a circuit court decision dismissing an equity action which asked a mandatory injunction to compel three Frostburg men to restore a sidewalk in front of their property to its former grade was argued in the Maryland Court of Appeals yesterday.

The bill of complaint was dismissed by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper in an opinion handed down on March 13 on the ground of lack of authority to grant the action sought. The suit was entered against James, Wesley and Roy Sleeman.

The mayor and councilmen said a new sidewalk was laid on top of the old pavement in front of the Sleemans' Main street premises without their authority. They alleged that the sidewalk created a dangerous obstruction and that the Sleemans had no right to change the grade of the sidewalk in any manner.

The case was argued yesterday by D. Lindsey Sloan and William A. Gunter for the mayor and council, and Edward J. Ryan for the Sleemans.

Cautions on Fires
Man-caused fires in Cheat district of the Monongahela national forest account for ninety-nine percent of the total number, according to Ranger Ralph Rowland of the forest service, Parsons.

Aside from railroads, debris burners, smokers and campfires cause most fires, he said.

West Virginia state laws provide for handling the first two.

Campfires are sometimes needed by hunters. They can be built on National Forest land under permits. These are required by Federal regulations and can be secured from any lookout, from the forest supervisor's office, or from the forest supervisor's office, Elkins, Rowland said.

Filbert's MARGARINE

Women Couldn't Keep This Secret

Mrs. Filbert's never was a war-time substitute to all the women who used it for 28 years.

To millions of women Mrs. Filbert's Margarine always has been superior because it has a delightfully sweet, and country fresh flavor so different from ordinary Margarine.

And when you add to its eating goodness—the added flavor as a shortening—the extra richness in cooking and frying—it's small wonder millions prefer it.

They coax flavor! Mrs. Filbert's Salad Dressing and Mayonnaise are so delicate—so smooth they actually coax out—never smother... even the hidden flavor of fruits and vegetables.

THEY USE A LOT OF LONG DISTANCE

We try our best to get their calls through promptly but, frankly, we are short of circuits right now and sometimes their calls are delayed.

However, we are adding Long Distance circuits just as fast as materials and manpower permit and, in time, we will have enough to handle all the calls that are placed.

In the meanwhile, you can help us handle the calls of these returning veterans by making only such Long Distance calls as are absolutely necessary and by making your message in each case as brief as possible.

Thank you.

CUMBERLAND'S GRAND BIG STORE

UP FRONT

There was a class of soldiers midway between the front and rear—"too far forward to wear ties and too far back to get shot." In this group there were a few men whose conduct, unfortunately, was taken by many combat men as typical of the entire class. I called these few men "garritroopers," to the subsequent protest of some paratroopers who felt that I had intended a crack at them. I really had not.

The garritroopers were able to look like combat men or like the rear soldiers, depending upon the current fashion trend. When the infantry was unpublicized and the Air Forces were receiving much attention, the emphasis was on beauty, and in every Army headquarters and mid-way supply dump you could have yourself with the garritrooper's trouser creases and use his shoes for a mirror. He would not wear ordinary GI trousers and shoes, but went in for sun glasses, civilian oxfords, and officers' forest-green clothing.

This burned up many decidedly unglamorous airplane mechanics who worked for a living and didn't look at all like the Air Force men the garritrooper saw in the magazines. It also burned many honest GIs.

Some months later, the infantry began to get attention. It didn't take the garritroopers long to switch clothes. They climbed out of the glamour rags and tossed the twenty-dollar sun glasses into the gutter. "Be dirty, be rough, be scuffed," they shouted. If they rode to town on a truck, they hung their faces over the side to get a coat of dust. They let their whiskers grow. They ripped holes in their pants and pounded their shoes with rocks. You could get five fancy officers' shirts for one tattered combat jacket, and if that jacket had a gen-yu-wine bullet hole you could name your own price.

"That can't be no combat man. He's lookin' fer a fight."

Bands of the garritroopers would hound a poor khaki-clad clerk, on his way home after a hard day at the office. They would yell, "Haw! Goddam base section. Rear echelon clerk!" And the base section clerk had to take it, because in his section regulations about clothing were quite strictly enforced.

The average doggie, sick of dirt, will make some effort to clean up when he gets one of those rare opportunities to go back to a city and he certainly doesn't want to start any fighting when he gets there. Every now and then, the garritroopers would mistake a freshly scrubbed infantryman for a rear man. When this happened, the doggie was usually too disgusted to protest.

But the saddest thing about the whole business was that a surprisingly large number of those khaki-clad little men far behind the battle, the men resented by doggie and cursed by garritrooper, had seen months of combat before being put on limited service because of wounds or exhaustion.

What Front Is Like
Dig a hole in your back yard while it is raining. Sit in the hole until the water climbs up around your ankles. Pour cold mud down your shirt collar. Sit there for forty-eight hours and, so there is no danger of your dozing off, imagine that a guy is sneaking around waiting for a chance to club you on the head.

Get out of the hole, fill a suitcase full of rocks, pick it up, put a shotgun in your other hand, and walk on the muddest road you can find. Fall flat on your face every few minutes as you imagine big meteors streaking down to sock you. After ten or twelve miles (remember—you are still carrying the shotgun and suitcase) start sneaking through the wet brush. Imagine that somebody has booby-trapped your route. Give some friend a rifle and have him blast in your direction once in a while.

Snoop around until you find a bull. Try to figure out a way to sneak around him without letting him see you. When he does see you, run like hell all the way back to your hole in the back yard, drop the suitcase and shotgun, and get in.

If you repeat this performance every three days for several months, you may begin to understand why an infantryman sometimes gets out of breath. But you still won't understand how he feels when things get tough.

One thing is pretty certain if you are in the infantry—you aren't going to be very warm and dry while you sleep. If you haven't thrown away your blankets and shelter half during a march, maybe you can find another guy who has kept his shelter half and the two of you can pitch a pup tent. But pup tents aren't very common around the front.

Neither is sleep, for that matter. You do most of your sleeping while you march. It's not a very healthy sleep; you might call it a sort of coma. You can't hear anybody telling you to move faster but you can hear a whispering whoosh when the enemy up ahead stops long enough to throw a shell at you.

On the March

It's a little better when you can lie down, even in the mud. Rocks are better than mud because you can curl yourself around the big rocks, even if you wake up with sore bruises where the little rocks dug into you. When you wake up in the mud, your cigarettes are all wet and you have an ache in your joints and a rattle in your chest.

You get back on your feet and bum a cigarette from somebody who had sense enough to keep a pack dry inside the webbing of his helmet liner. The smoke makes the roof of your mouth taste worse but it also makes you forget the big blister on your right heel. Your mind is still foggy as you finger the stubble on your face.

Then you pick up your rifle and your pack and the entrenching tool and the first-aid kit and the grenade pouches. You hang the bandleer around your neck and you take the grenades out of the pouches and hang them on your belt by the handles. You look everything over and try to find something else you can throw away to make the load on the blister a little lighter.

"Let 'im in. I wanna see a critter I kin feel sorry fer."

You start walking again but you are getting close now so you keep five yards between yourself and the next guy and you begin to feel your

WILLIE and JOE

By Mauldin

"... In Nuremberg, there is about to begin the trial of a score or more of prominent German 'war criminals' ... Some of them may be shot. They will be the lucky ones ... Death sometimes is more merciful and kind than life and the living."

—Karl H. von Wiegand, in the Hearst papers.

heart pounding a little faster. It isn't so bad when you get there—you don't have time to get scared. But it's bad going there and coming back. Going there you think of what might happen and coming back you remember what did happen and neither is pleasant to think about.

You feel tighter inside. You're getting closer. Somebody said that fear is nature's protection for you and that when you get scared your glands make you more alert. The hell with nature. You'd rather be calm the way everybody else seems to be. But you know they're just as jumpy as you are.

Now they're pulling off the road. Maybe you don't have to go up there tonight. You don't. You start to dig a slit trench. But there's a big root halfway down. Mud and roots seem to follow you wherever you go. You dig around the root and then you try the hole for size.

You throw some brush in the bottom of the trench. You squeeze in. You don't like it. You get out and sleep beside the hole. You wake up two hours later and you're glad you didn't get in the hole because the rain and the hole is half full of water and the hole is half full of water and the hole is half full of water.

Your head still feels fuzzy and your heart is still pounding but it's better because you have been lying down. A pool of water has collected right in the center of the shelter half you threw over yourself and the water is dripping right through to your skin. You brush the water out and pull the canvas tight around you. The rain continues, the weather is getting colder, and you try to go to sleep quick so you won't feel it.

Woman Is Killed, Man Is Injured When Car Upsets

Mrs. Lucy Warnick Dies in Accident on Dirt Road near Keyser

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Lucy Howdyshell Warnick, about 30, Keyser, was killed, her brother-in-law, Lester Durst, about 33, Keyser, was injured, and Janet Haines, 17, also of Keyser, escaped injury when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on a dirt road about two miles east of this city about 6 o'clock this evening.

The accident happened on the Fountain-Headville road a quarter of a mile east of Fountain school, according to Cpl. R. R. Karriekoff, who, with Trooper L. E. Proudfoot, of the West Virginia State Police, investigated.

Mrs. Warnick was driving the car when it went out of control and overturned, Karriekoff said. He added that she was pinned beneath the car. Pending further investigation, he said he presumed she died instantly inasmuch as the first persons to reach the scene said she was dead when they arrived. Durst, the owner of the car, suffered a dislocated shoulder and was admitted to Potomac Valley hospital here for treatment, Karriekoff reported.

He said the accident occurred on a straight stretch on the dirt road. The car was heading toward Keyser, he added.

Mrs. Warnick, a domestic worker, was the wife of Joseph Warnick and the daughter of George and Martha Grapes Howdyshell, Potomac Heights, Keyser.

Besides her husband and parents, she is survived by two brothers, George, Jr., and Oliver, at home; five sisters, Louise and Christina, at home; Mrs. Bessie Durst, Myrtle Gray and Mrs. Mamie Biser, all of Keyser.

Funeral services will be held at the home, Potomac Heights, at 2:30 p. m., Saturday, the Rev. Pete Saleskey, pastor of the Pentecostal church, presiding. Interment will be in Meadow Point cemetery.

The second joint meeting of the Upper Potomac 100F rally was held Monday night. Queens Point degree staff exemplified the work of the initiatory degree upon eight candidates; five for Queens Point and three for Mineral.

There were fifty-four in attendance; eight from Mineral lodge, Elk Garden, five from Barton lodge, one from Philon Lodge, Westport, and forty from Queens Point lodge, Keyser. At the close of the degree work refreshments were served.

An offer from Dunkirk Lodge No. 22, Baltimore, to come to Keyser on the evening of November 17, to confer any one of the four degrees of Odd Fellowship, was accepted. The initiatory degree seemed to have the preference for the occasion.

All lodges in the area are invited and urged to co-operate in having a large class for the team from Dunkirk when it comes here.

The next meeting of the Upper Potomac Rally will be held with Mineral Lodge No. 102, Elk Garden, Wednesday night, October 17.

Riggerman Rites Held
Funeral services for Mrs. Charles W. Riggerman who died Saturday were held Tuesday in the Pull Mission of God church, the Rev. Jonah Knox, pastor, officiating. Interment was in Cabin Run cemetery.

Carnes Nelson, Clarence Bowman, Alfred Ellifritz, Clarence Bowman, Morris Lewis and Owen Shears composed the honorary escort and Walter Graham, Delmar Rogers, Fred Willis, Harry Lloyd, Floyd Blizard and Delmore Bowman were pallbearers.

Don't Trust Love At First Sight, Miss Fairfax Says

Loneliness is the worst of match-makers. This pearl of wisdom is not to be found in any of the books of familiar quotations. It's the reflection of a G.I. Joe who tells me his experience.

A little older than some of his buddies, he wasn't exactly engaged but had what is known as an "understanding" with a nice girl in his home town. They considered being married before he was drafted but the girl had obligations to her family and he didn't care about hit-and-run, wartime marriages. So this eminently safe-and-sane young couple separated with tears and promises never to forget.

He was sent to a city near two army posts, and everyone within a radius of ten miles seemed possessed with the idea of giving the G.I.s a good time. At a dance he met a girl who was a revelation to him, wholly different from the girl he left behind who was gentle, domestic and not given to exploiting her own personality.

This new girl who charmed him into forgetfulness was of the Car-but had what is known as an "understanding" with a nice girl in his bit. Goodness knows why she turned the arclight of her fascination on the young man with the quiet girl at home. But either for her own entertainment or out of pure deviltry, she fascinated him, and for him it was a case of love at first sight. He never gave the girl back home a second thought after he met the girl whom we'll call "Carmen." And she got him into plenty of trouble too.

He borrowed money to give her the good times, the presents she demanded as her right. Of course, he asked her to marry him, which seemed funny to her, but she kept him dangling for her own purposes. After weeks and months in which he never answered a letter from the girl with whom he had an understanding, he wrote and told her he had fallen in love with someone else—just couldn't help it. It was a case of love at first sight. He knew he was a heel and not worth a second thought of hers, and he hoped she'd meet someone worthy of her.

The boy went on loving Carmen til one day she dropped out of sight, and a week later he received her wedding cards. She'd married an army captain who was said to have an independent fortune. And when he took his bruised feelings to the home-town, she had turned her affections elsewhere.

That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little PASTERETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Mrs. Fresh is scheduled to take part in a panel discussion at 9:30 a. m. Monday for laywomen and pastors' wives on the subject of what each of those groups expect of the other.

The following addresses will be delivered during the conference: "The Gettysburg Seminary Expansion Program," by the Rev. MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

LISTEN WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson
Registered U. S. Patent Office

We're always punishing people because they do not fit the pattern we have made for them.

We're not content that they should be themselves. We want them to be like us. We want them to do the things we'd like to do if we were in their shoes. . . . to fulfill our lost dreams and scrambled hopes. In short, we want them to be stooges—our mental Charlie McCarthys—and we get mad as hell if they won't.

That's why we are so much harder on those we love than we are on strangers. We expect more of those we love than we do of strangers. . . . we feel that we have a right to demand more of them.

There's sister, for example. Everyone says sister looks exactly like mother did at her age. Everytime mother looks at her, she sees her own lost youth more clearly. There's that same little dimple in her left cheek. . . . that same adorable trick of tucking in her chin. So mother, quite naturally, expects sister to be her counterpart in every other way.

Dancing, frinstance. Mother was simply crazy to be a professional dancer at 17. She thought of it day and night. And everyone said she would have been a wonderful success. But along came Bill—and before she knew it, mother was settled down, with three crying babies and a great big house and a spoiled husband to tend. And not a dance step left in her!

"Isn't it just horrible, the way we mothers get cheated out of life!" sighs mother.

Then her face brightens. . . . she has remembered sister! Pretty sister, who's the "living image" of what mom was at 17. Life may have cheated mom—but sister will make up for it! Sister will do all the marvelous things mom wanted to do—but didn't. . . . And of course mom will help her. Mom will go around with her. . . . help her make contacts. . . . be her business manager. . . . have part in all the fun!

"I can hardly wait for her to start!" breathless mom rapturously.

But sister doesn't start! Dancing is the last thing sister wants to do. Pretty soon, when Jim gets a raise, they'll have that little home they've been counting on. In the meantime, she has a swell job in a nice office. . . . of all the dreary careers! No girl in her right mind can possibly prefer an office job to dancing! Sister must be out of her head! She'll have another talk with her.

And so the war is on! Mother trying to make sis fit her own cherished pattern. . . . Sis protesting that she has "a right to live her own way." Angry words. . . . bitter, branding words whose scars will last for a lifetime. Not because sis has done anything wrong, but simply because she refuses to be mom's stooge.

We all do it—all try to make the other fellow fulfill our lost dreams. . . . fit our pet pattern. Hands off! You've no more right to commandeer your fellow human's personality than you have to use his toothbrush. If you haven't expressed yourself as fully as you wished—that's YOUR bad luck. Don't expect him to be your Charlie McCarthy! (Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

LaSalle and Clarksburg Will Clash Here Tonight

Explorers' Plans To Wear New Uniforms Hit Snag; St. Mary's Swaps Blue Jerseys for Red

COACHES IRISH

HERE'S a new picture of Hugh Devereaux, the Notre Dame football coach this year. Devereaux is a former star at Notre Dame and succeeded Ed McKeever as head coach this year.

LaSalle high school's football team will be striving to place its season's record in the 500 bracket tonight when it plays host to Coach Frank Mazza's Strippers from St. Mary's high school, Clarksburg, W. Va., in a contest scheduled for the Fort Hill stadium at 8 o'clock.

It's LaSalle's "Booster Night" game and the largest crowd to witness the Explorers in action this season is expected to turn out and root for Coach Long's warriors who won one of their first three contests, all played at home.

To Sport Old Jerseys
Pre-game plans on the part of LaSalle to trot its squad out in the field in brand new scarlet jerseys, with stockings to match and white helmets struck a snag last evening when Harry B. Rogan, athletic director at the Clarksburg school, advised LaSalle that St. Mary's squad had swapped jerseys with the Roosevelt-Wilson high school eleven of Clarksburg yesterday and the Strippers will wear red jerseys when they face the Explorers.

While this upset the well laid plans of LaSalle, Brother Gregory pointed out that the only way to solve the problem is for the Explorers to play their new duds in favor of their old gold and green jerseys because it's a custom in football for the home club to comply with the wishes of the visiting eleven.

Clarkburg's regular uniforms are blue jerseys and pants and white helmets. The team's nickname Strippers is borne out by white stripes on the sleeves of the jerseys and pants.

Rogan explained that St. Mary's swapped its blue jerseys for Roosevelt-Wilson's red because the latter team tomorrow is scheduled to play Bridgeport high, whose color scheme is also red. St. Mary's, he said, always was under the impression that LaSalle's colors were green and gold and he regretted that both teams changed their jersey colors at the same time to cause the mixup.

The visitors will sport blue pants in tonight's game.

McMahon Highly Rated
Coach Mazza, of St. Mary's formerly played football at Washington-Irving high, Clarksburg, and Salem college. The Strippers squad includes few seniors and is composed mostly of juniors and sophomores. Johnny McMahon, right tackle, is rated as being one of the outstanding tackles in Central West Virginia.

St. Mary's boasts a rather heavy line, made so by the presence of two huskies tipping the beam slightly over the 200-pound mark. The backfield is light, according to Rogan.

Coach Long is not definitely sure on three positions for his starting lineup. He will use either Arnone or Borden at left tackle, Espinoza or Jim Dorsey at center and Cleonon or Malloy as quarterback.

The probable starting lineups:

Greenberg's Homer in Sixth Game Is Labeled Most Dramatic Moment

Kayo of Borowy Is Fastest Finish; Frank Secory Is Most Ignored

BY WHITNEY MARTIN
CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—Getting the most out of the world series: MOST DRAMATIC MOMENT—Hank Greenberg's home run tying the score in the sixth game.

HARDEST HIT BALL—Rudy York's 415-foot poke at Detroit which was just another putout for the speedy Andy Patko.

MOST PREOCCUPIED—Charley Hostetter rounding third in the sixth game and ignoring Steve O'Neill's red light in his eagerness to get home, and then falling down trying to reverse his direction after the signal had registered on his mind.

MOST AMUSING INCIDENT—Andy Patko going through the vines on the centerfield wall like he was picking grapes trying to find a ball which had stuck there and which he couldn't see because he had on his sun glasses and everything looked green.

Borowy Goes Out Fast
FASTEST FINISH—Hank Borowy in the final game. Boom, boom, boom and he was out of there.

MOST POLITE—Doc Cramer and Roy Cullenbine bowing to each other in "you first, my dear sir" fashion as a fly ball dropped between them.

MOST OVERLOOKED—Stubby Overmire's fine pitching performance until he was relieved for a pinch hitter. It was good enough to win nine out of ten games, but he was up against Claude Passeau's spit curler in the third game.

MOST DISAPPOINTED—Play

Rice Picks Army To Beat Wolves; Navy Is Favored

Likes Irish over Dartmouth and Ohio State over Wisconsin

By GRANTLAND RICE
CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 11—Baseball, as usual, has overruled its spot in the sporting plan by pushing too far into the football season.

The two big league pennant races should end shortly after Labor Day which every one seems to know except those who run baseball, who learn slowly and with great reluctance.

So we are now facing late October football games at the end of an extended baseball season, where anyone attempting to follow both sports is in something of a snarl. But even those involved in the recent world series who have tried to keep close to the football situation know this—

Army, Navy Stand Out
1. That Army and Navy are still the two dominant teams in the country and will occupy the first two runnings until they meet.

2. That outside of Army and Navy, Pennsylvania and Holy Cross are the two best teams in the East.

3. That almost anyone can win the Big Nine title, including Indiana, Ohio State, Minnesota, Michigan and possibly Purdue or Illinois.

4. That Alabama will be one of the teams to beat in Dixie, with Georgia close.

5. That Southern California is still the leading team on the Pacific Coast and that in the Southwest there will be the usual wild scramble with Texas and the Oklahoma Aggies up around the front line.

6. That you can also include Tulsa in this group.

7. That Duke will be among the leaders along the Southeastern seaboard. Duke will be something for any southern rival to handle.

8. That Navy will win all her games outside of Army and Navy, who belong in a different league as far as material is concerned.

9. That Alabama and Cornell will be among the Eastern surprises.

10. That the earlier bowl bets include Southern California, Holy Cross, Duke, Alabama, Texas, Oklahoma A. and M., Georgia and Tulsa.

The Midwest has no bowl connections. Of the seven teams we've mentioned at least six will be in some bowl entanglement.

Army and Navy meet Michigan and Penn State on Saturday. Army and Navy figure to win by safe margins. Yet Michigan has an attack that is sure to test the cadet defense. The Wolverines are young but fast and alert. Throwing pass against the Army however is always a risky business with the interception possibilities that come from Army speed.

Sees Test for Army
This will be Army's first real test. Navy may also find Penn State better than rated. The Nittany Lions have a fair line and a few good backs who can't win but who will at least make a good contest.

Dartmouth's visit to South Bend will be one of the better inter-sectional matches, which Notre Dame should win. Dartmouth has no passer to match Danciewicz. Coach Hugh Devore's squad has been improving steadily every week.

Ohio State will meet Wisconsin in one of the leading Big Nine collisions. Ohio State has one of the best backfields in the country, headed by Sarringhaus, and should have more than the Badgers can handle. The Buckeye battalion may be the hardest team in the conference to stop, especially if the line play is improved just a bit.

Penn Is Favored
Pennsylvania's fast rolling squad will have too much for North Carolina. It will take Army or Navy to head off Penn this fall.

You can look for steadily improving play on the part of Columbia and Cornell also. Both coaches, Lou Little and Ed McKeever, have good backs, and while both teams are young, so are most of the others.

The Columbia-Cornell party later on will be one of the most interesting affairs of the Eastern campaign. Holy Cross, in beating a pretty good Yale team, has moved up high in the eastern section, not counting Army and Navy, who belong in another football realm.

Holy Cross isn't likely to lose another game.

With the world series debris cleared away football will now take over the sporting map until New Year's Day, facing the largest average attendance the colleges have ever known.

Nelson, Givan Set Pace In Seattle Open Golf

SEATTLE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Toledo's king of golf, Byron Nelson, and the prince of the northwest amateurs, Harry Givan, of Seattle, set a scorching pace through Broadmoor's fog-dampened fairways today in opening the 72-hole $10,250 Seattle open tourney, Nelson with a 62 and Givan with 66. Par for the route is 70.

Back in the groove after slipping badly in the Tacoma and Portland tourneys, Nelson's pace was stretched on a tight wire from tee to green. He plucked two eagles, caging long putts on the sixth and ninth holes for threes.

Tigers Were Dead Game Gang When the Going Was Toughest

O'Neill May Build New Team around Present Pitchers in 1946

By GAYLE TALBOT
CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Champion Detroit Tigers are anything but a great ball club, and they might be, as some claim, the weakest outfit to win a world series, but they were the best team in baseball this particular year and a dead-game gang when the going was toughest.

They were slow afoot and their fielding could be pretty atrocious and they couldn't hit a lick against real good pitching. But they possessed a superb pitching staff headed by Hal Newhouse and they had a stubborn determination to win over a young, speedy, alert Chicago Cubs team.

This, then, is in the nature of a valedictory for the Tigers of 1945, the last war-time champions, for they will not take the field again in recognizable form.

Assuming that all, or even most, of the Detroit stars now in the service are on hand when the team gathers at Lakeland, Florida, in mid-February—Steve O'Neill will be in position to put together almost a complete new club around his pitching corps.

Returning to the outfield will be Pat Mullin, Dick Wakefield and Barney McCosky, three proved performers, and they say that in Walter (Hoot) Evers, who played with Wakefield at Beaumont, O'Neill has a star who will push one of the above three right out of the lineup.

Hank Greenberg is supposed to be ticketed for a return to his old job at first base, as he no longer can roam the outer reaches. Rudy York probably will be sold.

Veteran centerfielder Roger Crammer, who led all Tiger batsmen in the series, said before the series he was well fixed financially and was playing his last year of ball. Roy Cullenbine, the Tigers' present rightfielder, doubtless will remain in a utility role.

With the possible exception of Eddie Mayo at second base, the champions' infield will be torn apart. Pinky Higgins, back from the navy, will take over his old job at third, with scrapping little Jimmy Outlaw sticking around as a utility man.

Skeeter Webb covered himself with glory in the series, but his chances of remaining at shortstop virtually are nil, what with Johnny Lipon and possibly Billy Hitchcock seeking the job. Mayo will have to outdo Jimmy Bloodworth when the latter comes back to reclaim his post at second.

Tebbets To Replace Richards
O'Neill, a sentimental gent, probably will shed a private tear or two when he is forced to relegate skinnypaul Richards to a coaching role next spring. It is inevitable, however, as Paul has about played out his string as catcher, and Birdie Tebbets will be returning from the navy, still a fine backstop.

With the aforementioned lineup-up and with such an array of top-notch flingers as Newhouse, Dizzy Trout, Virgil Trucks, Al Benton and Stubby Overmire to throw at the opposition, it is no cinch at all that the Tigers won't right back in the series a year from now.

As for the Cubs, beaten but from disgraced, they are pretty well set for next season except for one glaring weakness, at shortstop. It would not be surprising to see Marty Marion filling a Cubs' uniform next year.

Ground impregnated with mustard gas, used first by the Germans in the First World War, remained impregnated for days, continually giving off the vapor.

Bisons and Tornado Are Unbeaten, Unscored On and Untied

With the 1945 football season about one-third complete, the tri-state district, comprising teams in Maryland and nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania, boasts two teams that are undefeated, unscored on and untied.

Bedford (Pa.) high school's Bisons, coached by Bruce Fisher, have bowled over five opponents in as many starts, while Keyser high school's Golden Tornado, coached by Fred Clark, has chalked up four victories.

The third undefeated team among the thirteen operating in the area is Coach John Paugh's Moorefield Yellowjackets, victorious in four starts. The Hardy countians had their goal line crossed once.

Allegany and Fort Hill, of Cumberland, each have two wins to their credit but in their first meeting they battled to a 13-13 deadlock.

Parsons To Play At Petersburg

Romney Invades Moorefield, and Fort Ashby Is Host to Rowlesburg

Coach Homer Brooks's Parsons high school Panthers will play the Petersburg high Vikings today in Petersburg, W. Va., at 2:15 p. m., instead of meeting Thomas as originally scheduled.

The Panthers expect to play Thomas later in the season.

Other football games listed in nearby towns today include the sixteenth meeting of Romney's Pioneers and the Moorefield Yellowjackets in Moorefield, Rowlesburg's River Lions at Fort Ashby and Claysburg at Bedford, Pa., in a night contest.

In the Moorefield-Romney series, the Yellowjackets hold the edge in games won, 8 to 2. Two contests ended in tie scores.

In Saturday scholastic games Martinsburg, W. Va., plays Fort Hill at the local stadium at 8 p. m., while Allegany faces Hagerstown at the latter place at 2:30 p. m. Both are Cumberland Valley Athletic League tilts.

Rio Grande Loses
MONTGOMERY, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—West Virginia Institute of Technology capitalized tonight on a fumble intercepted pass and blocked punt in that order to score three touchdowns and defeat Rio Grande college 18 to 0.

It is obvious there has been a smear campaign worked up against me which has been paid for," he stated. "I don't know who was behind it and I am not interested, because it didn't get any place. My position is solid."

Chandler reiterated that he planned to resign as Kentucky senator "before a great while," but asserted that, contrary to reports, he had not yet mailed his resignation to Gov. Simeon Willis, had not in fact written it, and wasn't sure just when he would write it.

He said he was anxious to devote his full time to baseball as soon as possible and that he expected to be able to move into his new major league headquarters in Cincinnati next month.

"I have been in public service every day for the last eighteen years and that is a long time for a 47-year-old boy," he observed.

Lanier Leaves Army
GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 11 (AP)—Lefty Max Lanier is out of the army. The St. Louis Cardinals' ace southpaw hurler visited relatives here today before shoving off for his home town, Denton, N. C. He was discharged from Ft. Bragg on Tuesday.

Lanier, jubilant over his army release, will remain at Denton for awhile before traveling to Missouri where he will sharpen up his shooting eye on the birds as a hunter before spring baseball drills begin.

50 to 1 Shot Scores
SALEM, N. H., Oct. 11 (AP)—A 50-1 shot whose owner trainer thought so little of his chances he forgot to make an appearance at the paddock to saddle him, galloped home by three lengths in the $2,500 Bennington allowance purse at Rockingham Park today as the feature went to Lyle Phillips's Air Power.

The Phillips entry paid $111.00, $38 and $17.

Handicap Stars To Vie Saturday In $50,000 Race

Stymie and First Fiddle Have Chance To Lay Claim To Title

By FRED HAYDEN
NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—A pair of ex-players claimed as juveniles for a total of $4,000, but whose combined earnings now stand at a cool $48,000, have a chance Saturday to lay claim to the 1945 handicapper's title.

They are Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' four-year-old chestnut, Stymie, and Mrs. Ed Mulrennan's six-year-old grey, First Fiddle. Handicapper John B. Campbell makes them the favorites at 126 pounds for the $50,000 added, mile and five furlong Gallant Fox Handicap, this weekend's richest prize for the Jamaica meeting.

There is a remarkable similarity in the colorful careers of these one-time ugly ducklings who became swiftest swans of the thoroughbreds.

Both were claimed dirt cheap, Stymie for $1,500 and First Fiddle for $2,500. Each has been enjoying his career and is now enjoying his best season. Both are stretch runners.

Stymie, son of Equestrian-Stop Watch, was bred by Max Hirsch. Now in his third year of racing, he has earned $193,670 in seventy-one starts. First Fiddle, by Royal Minstrel-Rueful, began his career for C. V. Whitney and in five seasons had $304,385 to show for seventy-four trips postward.

Each ran last Saturday. Stymie won sensationally in Jamaica's Continental Handicap. The Fiddle lost by a neck to lightly-weighted Westminster in the Narragansett Special, spotting the victor eighteen pounds.

Aces Team Will Do Kaye's Radio Program Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—It's the Aces, Goodman and Jane with their "Easy Aces," who will be doing the Danny Kaye show on CBS at 10:30 Friday night. Goodman is the script writer for this series, and now he will get back into his old role that with his wife ran so long as a regular script act.

Fight bouts switch to the light-weight division on ABC at 10. Hitting at each other will be Allie Stolz and Pedro Firpo.

Henry A. Wallace, secretary of commerce, is to be the second guest of the two-program series, "Meet the Press," on MBS at 10:30. He will be questioned by a group of newspapermen about his "60,000,000 Jobs."

Also MBS at 1:30 in the afternoon is switching to Los Angeles for a Columbus day talk by Francis P.

In memory of our dear Father, Frank J. Forbeck, who died one year ago, October 11, 1944.

As we loved you in life,
We love you in death.
God grant you eternal rest.

Sadly missed by his daughters and son-in-law,

In loving memory of our wife and mother, Mrs. Minnie B. Close, who died three years ago today, October 12, 1942.

You rocked us in our cradles, you taught us on your knee;
You kissed our hurts to make them well, and Oh, so tenderly!
And now that God has called you, and you have said: "I come!"
We know that you prepare a place to make your Heaven our Home.

County Medical Care Program Opens November 1

Dr. Frantz Says State Board of Health Has Approved Plan

The medical care program for indigent persons in Allegany and Garrett counties is expected to go into operation November 1, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

The state has appropriated $200,000 to carry out the program, with Allegany county's share estimated at approximately $18,800 a year, or $1,900 monthly.

Dr. Frantz said that the program, which was drawn up by the Allegany County Medical Care Board at its first meeting September 12, has been approved by the state board of health. The Garrett county program, which is similar to that planned for this county, was outlined September 18 at a meeting in Oakland.

Dr. Frantz is the chairman of both medical care boards.

Letters In Preparation
Letters are being prepared to be sent to all doctors, dentists and pharmacists in both counties, describing the services which will be offered under the program.

Services to be provided by physicians include home and office visits, emergency medical and emergency surgical hospital care, and both home and hospital obstetrical care.

Those to be provided by dentists include acute and elective dental care. The latter type refers to dental work which is not absolutely necessary, but which may be authorized at the dentist's discretion.

Physicians and dentists will send their bills to the county board of health, which will pay the bills from the state appropriation. County pharmacists who fill prescriptions under the program, and physicians who dispense drugs costing more than fifty cents to indigent persons, will also bill the board of health.

Meeting Planned
Subject to the approval of the county welfare board, persons receiving public assistance may secure medical care certificates, good for six months, which may be presented to any physician, dentist or pharmacist in the county in case of illness or need for dental treatment, drugs, or medicines prescribed by a physician.

Dr. Frantz said that the Allegany County Medical Care Board will hold its second meeting Wednesday, October 17, in the board of health office at 8:30 p. m.

3 Young Persons Injured in Crash

Three Cumberland area young people were injured last night shortly before midnight on their way home from a skating party at Crystal Park when their car driven by a soldier on furlough crashed against a concrete bridge at Long.

Seven people were riding in the car driven by John Russell Wine, 18, Long, United States Army, which crashed against the bridge at Long when it failed to make a curve and spun all the way around in the road. A rear wheel was torn off the car.

The injured were:

Miss Virginia Gratehouse, 17, 113 Gephard drive.
Robert Mace, 16, Route 1, Cash Valley.
Miss Norma Lee Van Audsle, Route 1, LaVale boulevard.

William Dugan, LaVale, took the Mace boy to Allegany hospital in his car. Dugan told Trooper A. M. Spioch that the car driven by Wine had passed his car which was going in the same direction about a half mile west of the scene of the accident.

An Astor cab driver brought three of the girls to the hospital, only two of whom were injured.

Food Handlers To Meet Tonight

The second in a series of four lectures for all food handlers, owners and managers of local eating places will be held at 8 p. m. tonight in the city hall auditorium, according to Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer.

Included among the topics to be discussed during the lecture, which is titled "Service with a Smile," will be a discussion of the need for personal health and cleanliness of restaurant employees in preventing the spread of communicable diseases.

Another section of the lecture will be devoted to a discussion of methods by which waitresses can secure better tips from customers by courteous and efficient service, stressing the importance of a neat appearance and safe, clean practices in serving food.

A series of fifty-four questions and answers will be presented during the latter discussion, and the entire lecture will be illustrated by movies and slides.

The course is being held each Friday throughout this month in connection with the current survey of eating and drinking places by the Cumberland Health Department. Certificates will be presented to those who complete the course satisfactorily.

Missing Man Returns

Robert E. "Red" Logsdon, 24, guard at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, who was reported as missing from his home in Ellerslie since last Thursday, has returned home, police were told last evening.

Marion L. Weber Named Supervisor Of County Nurses

Public Health Vacancy Is Filled by State Board of Health

Miss Marion L. Weber, a public health nurse here for the past four years, has been appointed supervisor of public health nurses in Allegany county, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

The appointment, effective as of October 1, was made by the state board of health and approved by the board of county commissioners. Miss Weber succeeds Miss Sadie Rockwell, who left Cumberland last year to become supervisor of public health nurses at Rockville, Montgomery county, after serving here for three years.

A graduate of Pennsylvania Avenue high school, Miss Weber attended the University of Maryland for three years before returning to Cumberland. She was graduated from the Memorial hospital school of nursing in 1938, and was assigned to general duty at the hospital for the following two years.

In 1940 Miss Weber went to Richmond, Va., and attended the Richmond Professional Institute college of William and Mary, receiving a bachelor of science degree in nursing and a certificate as a public health nurse. She became public health nurse for Cumberland in October, 1941, and served in that capacity until July 1944, when she became state public health nurse for the eastern section of Allegany county.

Miss Weber resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Weber, 500 Oldtown road. Two of her four brothers are in the service. They are James L. Weber, technician fourth grade, who is stationed at Hickam field, near Honolulu, with the army signal corps; and A. John Weber, pharmacist's mate second class, stationed at Bethesda naval hospital.

Dusic Is Granted Permit

An occupancy permit was granted in the city engineer's office yesterday to Mike Dusic, 441 North Mechanic street, to occupy a building at 439 North Mechanic street as a retail fruit and grocery store.

The building, which Dusic owns, is located in a Residential "C" zoning district. It was formerly occupied by a wholesale produce firm.

Foresters of Two States Confer On Mutual Aid in Fire Season

District Forester William H. Johnson, who conferred with District Forester J. B. Saville, of the South Branch West Virginia area, and E. Debs Hair, county forest protector at Petersburg, Va., concerning mutual aid between the two districts during the forthcoming autumn fire season.

The foresters explained that towers in both West Virginia and Maryland have long-range views of woodland areas in both districts and agreed that foresters in both districts would "keep an eye peeled" on each side of the state line.

Siding Hill tower in West Virginia has a fine view across a long stretch of Maryland woodland and the towers on Warrior mountain, Dan's Rock and Town Hill have equally good views into West Virginia.

Program for Crippled Children Is Backed by Cumberland Elks Lodge

Minstrel Will Be Given on Thursday, Oct. 18, for Benefit of Allegany County League for Crippled Children

By JAMES B. CRAIG
For the last eleven years, Cumberland Lodge No. 63, BPOE, has solidly supported the program of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children and this year is to be no exception.

Thursday, October 18, at 8:15 p. m. the Elks headed by John H. Mosner, past exalted ruler and chairman, will present a rollicking minstrel show at the Maryland theater. The Elks are working hard on the show and they are hopeful that the public will support their venture.

The proceeds will be turned over to the Crippled Children's League to carry on the program under the capable direction of Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, president.

700 Operations Performed
In May, 1945, the Allegany County League for Crippled Children began the twelfth year of its existence. In the past eleven years the league has served approximately 2,400 children with some type of assistance that had to do with relief from crippling conditions.

The program in the past has been devoted almost entirely to meeting essential requirements incident to the care and treatment of deformities. More than 700 surgical operations have been performed and innumerable braces, shoes, x-ray services have been supplied to Allegheny county children whose parents could not afford to meet such costs.

Clinics have been conducted at regular intervals each year and a thorough follow-up plan has been in effect since the league's organization.

The clinics are conducted by some of the most competent specialists the country has to offer. They are Dr. George E. Bennett, Dr. David Weinberg and Dr. George Eaton, who have charge of all children whose crippling condition does not place them in a "special group."

For one "special group" known as the "cerebral palsied children," Dr. Phelps holds clinics. Dr. Phelps is a noted authority on the treatment of these children and the results of his efforts in their behalf has been most successful.

Another "special group" is children whose deformities must be corrected by the "plastic surgeon." Dr. Edward A. Kilowski conducts clinics for these children and performs the necessary operations.

These physicians, who are untiring in their efforts to help the "crippled child," donate their services.

Police to Question YOUTHS CONCERNING RECENT CAR THEFTS

Three local youths are being held in the city jail for questioning in connection with a series of car thefts here during the past two weeks.

They were booked as Charles Johnson, 148 Bedford street; Patrick Dentinger, 109 Decatur street, and Richard Newhouse, 312 Davidson street.

The youths were arrested early yesterday morning by Lt. James E. Van and Officer Edward C. Woods. Police said the youths have been arrested on several occasions in the last year for loitering on the streets after midnight.

Detective Lt. B. Frank Gaffney said they will be questioned about three of the car thefts reported here recently.

There was no letup yesterday in the wave of car thefts which have plagued city and state police as three more car owners reported missing vehicles.

Cloyd Smith, LaVale, reported late yesterday afternoon that his 1941 Blue Oldsmobile sedan, bearing Maryland license No. 585-132, was stolen from in front of the Cement Products Company, Henderson avenue, yesterday at 4:05 p. m.

Columbia Will Delay Opening Of Service Here

Lack of Hangar Space at Baltimore Airport Is Cited by Bonifay

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—President O. L. Bonifay of Columbia Airlines, Inc., said today he would be unable to start air service to Hagerstown and Cumberland next week as planned because of the unavailability of hangar space at the Baltimore municipal airport.

He declared that in accordance with civil aeronautics regulations his ten-passenger Boeings would have to be checked after every fifty flight hours and that his mechanics could not do so on the open field.

Bonifay said that in his opinion permanent hangar space was available at the port and was being denied him despite assurances several months ago by city aviation authorities that the airline would receive these facilities when ready to begin operations.

Space Conditions Cited
However, Robert O. Bonnell, chairman of the Baltimore Aviation Commission, said hangar space for repair purposes would be furnished Columbia Airlines but that permanent shelter could not be rented because of space conditions and the necessity of keeping some hangar locations free for repair of other planes.

Harry W. Hayter, operations manager for Columbia, said yesterday afternoon at a conference with the airport committee and the mayor and city council that the company may cut its charge of ten cents a passenger mile to eight and a half cents after flights are begun.

Hayter and four pilots came here yesterday on a trial flight from Baltimore. They returned to Baltimore yesterday evening.

The operations manager, praising the local airport, said that in good weather no problems of taking off or landing should be experienced. He said that when instrument flying is necessary, the mountain beyond the west end of Runway No. 1 might cause some difficulty, but he added that no trouble should be encountered by experienced pilots.

The company has three planes ready to put into service, ten-passenger twin-engine Boeings. In addition, the line hopes to purchase two new Boeings within a year. The cruising speed of planes is approximately 140 miles an hour.

Facilities Planned
Plans were made at the conference regarding facilities which will be available to the company at the airport here. Mayor Thomas S. Post said that a room in the present administration building will provide space for a ticket office, and that by December 1 it is hoped to have a permanent room for that purpose.

The middle room of the building will be put into readiness for use as a waiting room until other accommodations can be provided, the mayor added.

Hayter said that arrangements are in progress with a local taxi company to provide free service to and from the airport. The cost of the service would be included in each passenger's flight ticket, he added.

In addition to the ticket agent, the company plans to have a downtown representative in a local hotel to make reservations and sell tickets.

Columbia does not plan to maintain a mechanic here but may do refueling, Hayter said. At present there is one 600-gallon gasoline tank at the airport.

Although schedule plans are still tentative, Hayter said that two trips daily between Cumberland, Hagerstown and Baltimore are to be arranged, with a plane leaving here at 8:30 a. m. and arriving in Baltimore at 10 a. m., and a return flight leaving Baltimore at 4:30 p. m. and landing here at 6 p. m.

City officials were taken on sightseeing flights yesterday morning and afternoon.

YMCA Cafeteria Manager Resigns

Mrs. Leah Hoesy, cafeteria manager at Central YMCA for the past three years, will resign Monday to accept a position with the Milson Furniture Company, Robert L. Sloan, general YMCA secretary, announced last night.

Mrs. Hoesy will be succeeded by Miss Geraldine Harding, who has been employed as a steam table operator in the cafeteria since 1942.

Employees and members of the YMCA staff honored Mrs. Hoesy with a party in the cafeteria at 8 p. m. yesterday, and presented her with a leather pocketbook in recognition of her services as manager.

Lloyd Rawlings, president of Central YMCA, Sloan, and Oscar I. Bergstrom, associate general secretary, gave short talks praising Mrs. Hoesy for her work. Bergstrom acted as toastmaster at the party, which was attended by twenty-two persons, including Mrs. Sisson, Mrs. Rawlings and Mrs. Bergstrom.

Mrs. Hoesy thanked the eight members of the cafeteria staff for their co-operation with her during her service as manager.

Man and Daughter Are Struck by Car

William Wentling, 226 Harrison street, and his daughter, Eugenia, were struck by a car at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic streets last evening at 8:10 p. m.

Officers Ernest M. Powell, who investigated, was told that they were "brushed" by a car driven by E. Lee Kline, 308 Pennsylvania avenue. Both refused medical treatment, he added.

Witnesses told police that Wentling and his daughter were crossing on a green traffic light. No charges were preferred.

NAVY FLIER DECORATED—

Ensign John G. Blades, 22 (right), son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Blades, 919 Grand avenue, and husband of Mrs. Sue Meister Blades, 919 Harding avenue, is shown above as he was congratulated by Capt. T. L. Robbins (left), commander of the aircraft carrier USS Lexington, upon being awarded the Air Medal and two Gold Stars in lieu of second and third Air Medals. Ensign Blades, pilot of a navy torpedo bomber which flew from the Lexington, has been overseas since April, taking part in missions over Tokyo. He entered the navy in January, 1943, and received his ensign's commission at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

90-Year-Old Native of County Is Still Practicing Medicine

Dr. George H. Hocking, Baltimore, Once Practiced at Mt. Savage

Dr. George H. Hocking, a native Allegheny countyman who as a young man drove a mule team at a mine near Barton where his father was superintendent, today has the distinction of probably being Maryland's oldest practicing physician. He observed his ninetieth birthday Monday.

Now living in the "doctor's house" on York road, Baltimore, so called because it has housed a practicing physician continuously since 1855, Dr. Hocking commented that he is "still in harness" since he continues to maintain an office practice although he gave up general practice several years ago.

He is the only living member of a class of sixty young men graduated from the University of Maryland Medical school sixty-six years ago.

Vaccinated Judge Sloan
That same year, 1879, Dr. Hocking began the practice of medicine at Deer Park, Garrett county, and at one time traveled to Longsight to assist the well known Dr. E. Ellis Porter. It was at this time that he was vaccinated former Chief Judge D. Lindsey Sloan against smallpox.

When Dr. Alexander Thompson died at Mt. Savage in 1881, Dr. Hocking moved there and for fifteen years he was surgeon for the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad and the Union Mining Company.

The son of William and Jennifer Hocking, Dr. Hocking was born on a small farm near the C. and P. depot near Frostburg in 1855.

His parents came to this country in 1849 from Cornwall, England, and his father was one of the pioneer mining engineers of the Georges Creek region, first settling on what was known as the Scrub Ridge farm near Eckhart.

Dr. Hocking received his preliminary education at Barton school and tutored under private arrangements. He drove a mule team and did other outside work at a mine where his father was superintendent, and Dr. Hocking says that had a (Continued on Page 7, Col. 1.)

Local Legion Post To Seek Funds To Send Christmas Boxes to Vets

Hundreds of families in Cumberland today are quietly thanking God that their loved ones will be home from foreign shores by Christmas—safe and sound.

But these returning soldiers would be the first to state that the people back home, in their great happiness, should not forget the thousands of soldiers who will spend Christmas in army and navy hospitals.

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, has resolved that the public, on this first peacetime Christmas, shall not forget these wounded men in hospitals.

No family which is welcoming returning veterans for Christmas has a right to feel completely happy until it has given something for these men who will spend a lonely Christmas in hospital wards, the Legion feels.

Accordingly, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 has appointed a committee headed by Ambrose J. Burke, chairman, which will have charge of a city-wide program of raising funds for Christmas boxes for wounded Maryland soldiers.

All Cumberland stores and service organizations will be invited to participate in this campaign de-

Labor Controls Situation, Father Montgomery Says

Must Have Wage Sufficient To Purchase Products of Industry

Speaking on the subject "Labor and Capital," Father Francis E. Montgomery last night told eighty members of the Knights of Columbus here not to get unduly excited about the wave of strikes in the United States at present. Labor, he said, has the situation well under control.

Quoting from the parable of the householder from St. Matthew, Father Montgomery declared that man has to work for his own livelihood and for the benefit of society.

Father Montgomery said that the employer should offer work to those who are idle and that the employer's aim should be to promote the happiness and efficiency of society.

The speaker also stated that the laborer is worthy of his hire and is entitled to a just wage.

Father Montgomery declared that wages are subject to the Christian law of justice but he condemned what he termed a "greed wage." The speaker told his audience that "labor has the right to seek increase in wages when times demand it."

At this point, the speaker quoted Waltham Ruther, vice president of the United Auto Workers, who stated, "we suffer to put it briefly, from what Thorstein Veblen called the 'inordinate productivity of the machine.' We have mastered technology and possess a complex high octane B-29 production machine but our productive genius has always been stalemated by our failure at the distribution end. We have found it impossible to sustain a mass purchasing power capable of providing a stable market for the products of twentieth century technology. This disparity between our B-29 technology and our huffing and puffing Model T distribution system led to the crash of 1929 and ushered in a period of unprecedented waste of human and material resources."

Need Buying Wage
Father Montgomery said that labor believes that normal business practices are not good enough—so it appears that they have a well-conceived plan of causing strikes in all industry so that industry may be made to realize that they can't produce at the rate of mass production without giving to their employees the powers and wherewithal to purchase their products.

At this point, Father Montgomery said that labor had demanded a thirty per cent increase—an amount, in his opinion, that is in excess of the amount needed. And there he referred to the recent Celanese negotiations where management has made in a cold and unfeeling manner without exorbitant demands being presented.

Father Montgomery said that industry must realize that it has the responsibility of creating and sustaining a mass market and at the same time maintaining a purchasing market for its product.

In explaining his talk, Father Montgomery said that labor wants its share now—when there is a good market.
